BEGINNERS LEVEL, GERMAN A2.2

1. Description:
Students will acquire further skills and abilities in correct pronunciation and intonation, as they learn to form complex, grammatically and semantically correct German sentences. They read brief, simple texts about topics of everyday life with a high proportion of internationally used words. They learn to act in brief conversations about everyday life and routine (e.g. reporting and narrating personal experience, making appointments, expressing preferences and intentions, giving advice, debating), to interact and ask questions, and students will write brief texts (e.g. CV, personal letters, reports of events such as accidents and other personal experience, comment).

Topics:
Language learning, post office and telecommunication, media, hotel communication, travelling and traffic, weather and climate, cultural events, print media, government and administration, etc.

Grammar:
Conjunktion als, passive voice in present tense, order of objects, indirect questions, local präpositions, verbs with prepositions, questions with prepositional adverbs, modal verbs in past tense, questions with welch-, demonstrative pronouns, sentence structure with lassen

2. Aims:
The course objectives correspond with the skills described for level A 2 (Waystage) of the CEF. The course aims at providing further skills at a basic level of German, enabling students to cope with everyday communicative situations, mainly in a university setting, with simple language means. It focuses on the development of oral communication skills.

3. Level:

a) Target group: Foreign students with a previous language knowledge of at least 100-150 hours of class, as demonstrated in our placement test

b) Placement-test T1: 136 – 180 points

4. Course material: Menschen A 2.2 (course- and workbook)

5. Examination prerequisites:
- regular class attendance (at least 80%)
- completion of self-study material
- Your course instructor will inform you about further examination prerequisites.

6. Examination:
- final test: 90 min
- The test consists of a reading, vocabulary, grammar and writing section.

7. Certificate: Modulschein A 2.2

8. ECTS-Points: 6